I share my business expertise using humorous storytelling

Hello, I am Bob Mann. I grew up in Alabama with a belief in the importance of family, faith and friends. Both of my parents were educators. My careers and experiences range from grocery retail and food service to entrepreneurship.

Each experience brought learning and insights that sharpened both my team's business expertise and our ability to understand our customers.

We had to work, watch and learn while searching for an opportunity for success. Diligence paid off and we found it. We conquered a corporate giant's resistance to middlemen. We were fortunate to be part of a company which created good jobs for a talented and hard-working team of people.

The company very successfully used both conventional and "outside of the box" methods and philosophies to meet the stringent demands of one of the largest conglomerates in the world.

Let me share my experiences and techniques with you and your meeting attendees.
